Introduction to Standard Indicators

When applying the CKU Pool, applicants are required to develop a result framework (Logframe) that includes indicators. An indicator tells us what we are going to measure in relation to the outcomes and outputs presented in the results framework.

The purpose of the catalogue of standard indicators is to provide inspiration and assistance in identifying relevant indicators when preparing a project result framework. The list is comprehensive but not a complete list of indicators that can be used as inspiration when drafting the results framework (Logframe).

The catalogue is arranged according to DMCCD's core thematic intervention areas:

- » Strengthening local communities
- » Agriculture and food security
- » Child Protection
- » General protection measures
- » Organizational development
- » Strategic services
- » Advocacy

Choosing/developing indicators

Indicators should be specific and clearly measurable. Indicators can be quantitative:

- » Number (#).
- » Percentage/proportion (%).
- » Rate (example: birth rate—births per 1,000 population).
- » Ratio (example: sex ratio—number of males per number of females).

Or they can be qualitative reflecting people's knowledge/attitude/practice towards a given situation or subject.

They can include changes in understanding/awareness/ assertiveness /satisfaction/influence/quality of operation/sense of well-being. Qualitative indicators measure results in terms of:

- » Status/degree of.
- » Compliance with.
- » Quality of.
- » Performance of.
- » Extent of.
- » Level of.

Gender is reflected as a cross-cutting perspective in the catalogue but particularly highlighted under general protection measures.

Best practice suggests a maximum number of three indicators per outcome/output. By limiting the number of indicators to a few carefully selected, relevant indicators you are more likely to be able to monitor the indicators systematically and thoroughly.

Some of the standard indicators have been taken from the Global indicator framework for the Sustainable Development Goals. Below CKU has selected the most relevant SDG goals and indicators from the Global SDG framework. DMCCD will be reporting on the use of SDGs to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, and members are encouraged to apply SDG-targets and indicators in their results framework when relevant, but in particular the following indicators:
